THURSDAY JANUARY 31, 1884

THE CIRCULATION OF THE BIS PATCH IS LARGER THAN THE COMBINED CIRCULATION OF ALL THE OTHER DAILY NEWSPAPERS OF THE CITY.

LOCAL MATTERS.

Congressional Apportionment.

The special joint committee appointed to report a bill fixing the apportionment of Virginia in Congress met in the Senate chamber last night (Mr. Gibson, of Culpeper, in the chair) and recommitted to the sub-committee (Mr. Heaton, chairman) all the pians, and adjourned to meet on tomorrow morning at 94 o'clock.

The following is the plan submitted by Mr. Porter, of Portsmouth:

by Hollywood Cemetery Company without charge, in which 7,557 soldiers were buried.

2. Whole number of soldiers were buried in the two cemeteries about 12,000. Heighth of monument 96 feet.

A Daring Robbery.

BY A MULATTO AND HIS STORE ROBBED.

Mrs. De Long's Purchase.

Mrs. De Long, the widow of the gallant mmander of the ill-fated Jeannette expelinquished the sack.

TWO OLD FARMERS, BOTH INNOCENT OF GUILE, CHANT.

A rustic-looking man sat in the smoking car of the Omaha train last Thursday night, when another rural-looking person Population came in. "Is this seat taken?" asked the newcomer.

"No, sir; sit right down, sit right down," said the other, making room next him.

Soon the two old farmers were in conversation.
"Where are you from?"

"I live near Buda. Where do you hail 150.626 from ?

"I'm a pretty near neighbor of yours; I live near Kewanee.' A PITTSBURGH JEWELLER'S WIFE SILENCED "Farming?" "Yes. Are you?"

"Yes; farming and stock." "Been to town with stock?" "Yes; brought up a hundred head of steers.

A Pittsburgh (Pa.) special says: A daring daylight robbery took place Tuesday morning on one of the most crowded thoroughfares of the city. The jewelry-and optical-instrument store of S. Levien, No. 7 sixth street, was entered at half-past 10 o'clock and despoiled of $1,500 worth of watches and jewelry. Mr. Levien went out for a short time, leaving his wife in the store. She left the store to go into a "I brought bogs." And so the conversation ran on until just before the train reached Mendota, and the two old farmers were right well acquainted. Presently another man, who looked like a store. She left the store to go into a room in the rear, and in coming back dis-merchant, came in, and was surprised to see one of the old farmers. covered a mulatto crouched at the door of the safe working at the lock. She "Well, well, well," said the new man "I'm glad to see you; maybe you can help me out of a little embrassing trouble. I screamed, and the negro sprang up, thrust a revolver in her face and ordered want to pay a man a little bill on the train before I get off at Mendota, and I haven't her to keep quiet or he would kill her. He then forced her into the back room, all the while threatening to shoot her, and, after money enough. If you will let me have $100 on my check I'll be very much obliged."

locking her in, made his escape down Coach alley and into some stables, where all trace of him was lost. An examination "Certainly, I'm glad to do it," and out came the farmer's pocket-book. But, alas, be had only $40 in small bills and a beautishowed that the show-cases were in con-fusion and many valuable articles missing, ful, crisp $500 bill.

gold watch, one diamond stud, one diamond ring, three silver watches, and several trays of solid gold rings.

The authorities of the $40 if you can get it broke."

The authorities were notified and the detectives are on a hunt for the thief. Mrs. Levien describes him as about twenty vears old, light complexion, smooth face and wearing a yellowish-brown coat and dark, stiff hat. The same negro has been noticed loitering about the vicinity for some time, and a few days ago went in and asked to be shown some rings. Mrs. Levien did not comply with the request, as she did not believe he was an intending purchaser.

If you can get it broke."

"Perhaps your friend can help us out; the $40 will hardly answer," said the merchant, and then he apologized for making so much trouble.

"Well," softly said the other farmer, who until now had been silently looking on, "I can't change a $500-bill, but I can give you another one for it, and I think it came out of the same batch, and was printed on the same press."

And turning to the other old farmer he added: "If your partner hadn't come just as he did when were had the merchant."

And turning to the other old farmer he added: "If your partner hadn't come just as he did, mine would have been here in a minute. I've been getting ready to work you on the same game ever since we left Chicago."

At Mendota four very much disgusted confidence-men stepped off the train and stood around in the cold waiting for a train returning to Chicago.

He Tried It.

Ars, be tong, the ill-fated Jeannette expedition to the Arctic regions, recently purchased a lot in one of the cemeteries located near New York, and has intinated a desire to bury in it the remains of her late husband. She has written letters to the families of those members of the ship's crew who lost their lives in company with Lieutenant-Commander De Long, asking that their bodies may also be interred in the lot, all expenses to be borne by Mrs. De Long. who lost their lives in company with Lieutenant-Commander De Long, asking that their bodies may also be interred in the lot, all expenses to be borne by Mrs. De Long.

Three Javemile Shoplifters.

Three girls, less than nine years of age, daughters of respectable parents, have been arrested in Schenectady, N. Y., for shoplifting. Nearly a dozen leading merchants have been despoiled. The parents have restored sufficient dry goods and trinkets to stock a store. The culprits are school-children.

The Ouray Times is a very interesting sheet, considering the fact that it is published in one of the most prosperous mining campe in Colorado. This is the last—lie we are ever going to tell about that paper,—Solid Muldoon.

The curious experience of an English farm-hand recently throws in a measure some light on the question whether or not hanging is paintal. A number of men were one day discussing an execution which had just taken place at Liverpool, when one of them expressed a desire to learn what hanging was like. His companions were ready to gratify him, and he was soon swinging from a beam in the barn where they had gathered. But they left him too long in this situation, and when rates they let him down he sank to the floor, to all appearances stone dead. However, after a long interval he begun to revive, to their great relief, and at length he sat up and stared wildly about him. Then one of his companions asked: "Well, Tom, had the like hanging?" "Hey, man," answered Tom with a stutter, man," answered Tom with a stutter, man," answered Tom with a stutter.
